Plans Released For Publication of GSC Statutes

Plans for the publication of "Statutes of Georgia Southern College," a pamphlet describing the duties and responsibilities of administrative officers and faculty members and the policies of the college, are now underway, according to Dr. John A. Boole, steering committee chairman.

The steering committee, established recently by Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president of Georgia Southern College, is composed of six members in addition to Dr. Boole. They include: Dean Ralph K. Tyson, Dr. Fielding D. Russell, Dr. Lloyd Toumey, Dr. Georgia Watson, Dr. Donald F. Hackett, and Dean Paul F. Carroll, an ex-officio member of the committee.

Five faculty sub-committees have been formed headed by Dr. Tully Pennington, Mr. Jack Broucke, Dr. Samuel T. Habel, Dr. George Rogers, and Mr. Roy F. Powell. The members of these committees, which will compose the entire faculty, will write the various statutes to be included in this new publication at GSC.

Possible completion date should be in either February or March, Dr. Boole stated.

DR. BURTON BOGITSH

The National Science Foundation of Washington, D. C. this week announced that $48,200 has been granted to Georgia Southern for support of a Summer Institute for High School teachers.

Dr. Burton J. Bogitsh, associate professor of biology, will direct the six-weeks program tentatively scheduled to begin June 12, 1961.

Dr. Bogitsh has been called to Washington this week to work out final arrangements for this program. They will be announced next week. Before leaving, he said, "This is a fine honor for not only the GSC science division, but for the college in general. We are happy to be made a part of this excellent program that is designed to upgrade the teaching standards of the high school mathematics and science teachers."

Georgia Southern Is First Choice For 339 Ga. High School Students

By JIM POLLAK

Three hundred and thirty-nine high school students in Georgia schools have listed GSC as their first choice for college.

Six representatives from GSC visited 111 Georgia high schools participating in college day programs during this quarter. In all, 835 students heard about GSC at these meetings. Of this number 522 were girls.

Scriven County High School in Sylvania took the lead with 22 students selecting Georgia Southern as first choice. Wrightsville High School followed with 20.

Opinions Given

The opinions of some of the representatives from GSC who attended these meetings are:

Miss Kirbylene Stephens, secretary to the president: "If the meetings are at night when students come back to the school voluntarily with their parents they are more interested and ask better questions. We have participated for several years and are expected to be there to answer questions. It is very good for those who enroll at GSC and do not get here until September because they still come knowing a little about the college. The success depends on the counselor of the high school and the preparations which have been made in the school."

Mrs. Carolyn C. Gettys, dean of women: "I was in the Atlanta area where fewer people seem interested in GSC, but of those with whom I talked, most were interested because they felt this to be a good teacher training institution."

I think these programs are a good idea and even though just a few students may come as a result of it, it is still worthwhile for us to attend. Some of the students attend the programs because they are required to do so. Even though they are not planning on going to college, I feel by talking to them we may interest them in furthering their education."

Axelson Quoted

Joe Axelson, director of public relations: "I have represented Georgia Southern in most of the communities of the state at one time or another over the past several years and I view the College Day Programs with mixed emotions.

I think the program's effectiveness in each school varies directly with the advance preparation by the school's counselor and/or principal. In the same day I have talked to students at one school who come armed with intelligent questions, who know what they want from college and who reflect good leadership; and conversely students at the next school down the road will act like seven-year-olds.

The college representative is not impressed with the student who asks "Do I have to take foreign language?" or "May I have a car?" or "What time do I have to be in at night?" He, of course, will answer these questions, but would much rather hear "What foreign languages may I study?" or "Is a student permitted to minor in history if he wants a business education major?"

Improvement Seen

I believe that this situation will improve when the Georgia high school senior comes to the realization that college is no longer open to anyone who graduates from high school, and books must be "cracked" in order to stay."

Mr. Roy F. Powell, assistant professor of English: "For the most part I think students are more prepared for the college day programs now than they have been in the past. I believe it gives us the very best public relations opportunity we have. We have to be alert and sharp to present our very best because the students are also listening to our 'competitors.' I think we can look at it not as student recruiting, but as a long range public relations outlet."

Principals of schools often write back to GSC expressing thanks for participating, but Dean Gettys received a letter which may best point out the value of these programs. The letter came from the National Honor Society at Northside High School in Atlanta thanking her for her participation and expressing the hope that her visit may have interested some Northside students in coming to Georgia Southern.

Citizens Can Help Ga.'s Educational Progress

THINGS ARE BOOMING at Georgia Southern, just as they are at other units of the University System throughout the state. Enrollments are up, plants are undergoing expansion, morale of faculties is high, and the quality of students continues to improve.

But a careful look at all of these manifestations of growth and improvement reveals that state supported higher education in Georgia is still up against great odds.

With this in mind, the University System has just released a special report to the people of Georgia which shows, for instance, that even with the all-time high expenditures on education, Georgia still remains well below the South and nation in this regard.

The special report — "The Odds Are Against Us" — was prepared by a committee of the presidents of the System's 19 units. It very carefully documents the relative position of state supported higher education.

It shows that in 1959-60 Georgia spent $6.16 per capita, trailing other Southern states, who spent an average of $6.88 per capita, and nation, which spent $7.88.

"The competitive position of the University System in the area of faculty salaries is especially in danger because of this fact," the report continues. "The University System competes with other institutions throughout the South and with industry for faculty members. In spite of progress toward raising teacher salaries, the average salary of faculty members in Georgia is still almost $1000 a year less than the national average."

An enrollment of 45,200 students is expected in the units of the University System by 1964, an increase of 15,000 over current enrollment, the report points out. An additional 10,000 will crowd into the colleges by 1969.

Providing education for this many students is placing an enormous financial burden on the University System and additional financial support must be given now to enable the colleges to prepare for the new students.

"Georgia now stands eighth among the twelve Southeastern states in the amount of personal income spent for higher education," the President's committee adds. "If Georgia is to compete with the other states in the country's fastest growing, most competitive area, the state must better this ranking."

"The University System needs the help of every citizen of Georgia to insure that it continues to grow."

How Many Times Does This Have To Happen?

The George-Anne is now pleading with the powers that be for the traffic around the circle to be one way. How many more wrecks will have to happen before we see the light?

With hundreds of pedestrians on campus and almost as many as cars, it's not too difficult to see someone getting hurt or killed. We don't want this to happen.

The circle was simply not built to accommodate four lanes of cars, especially with the wide, late models on the campus daily.

"If they continue building sidewalks, they will soon need to put up 'stop' signs to prevent collisions," someone said not too long ago. This is true but those same sidewalks definitely come in handy on rainy days. They may encourage human collisions, but they certainly do eliminate some muddy feet.

problem. On rainy days, however, these areas become a little muddy. Perhaps if they were covered with scattered docks or gravel they would not be as unsightly after a downpour.

On the subject of sidewalks, there's a dark one which leads from Sweetheart Circle to the front gate. This shaded lane is frequently traveled by students.

The newly planned parking lots, which are situated behind the library and between the Williams Center and the Herty Building are helping to alleviate the parking walking toward the Paragon. During the day it is a nice, cool walk for some young ladies. At night, these same young ladies would probably be happier if their way were a little better lighted and the walk would make a safer stroll for everyone.

HOW DID YOU VOTE?

Everyone is still wondering how the election will turn out in the Electoral College. As is now well known, Senator John F. Kennedy received the largest number of popular votes and is the 1960 president-elect.

Something that is known by few people is the fact that this was one of the closest elections at the polls. Kennedy had a majority of less than 1/2 of 1% of the popular vote. The total number of voters this year was the largest in American history — 66,898,019. The next two largest totals were for the two Eisenhower elections — 61,550,000 votes in 1952, and 62,027,000 votes in 1956.

INTEGRATION IN NEW ORLEANS

These last few weeks have been hectic ones in New Orleans. Over a thousand white students have been kept home from the two formerly all-white, now integrated elementary schools by their parents as a protest. The subjects of the protest, four 6-year-old Negro girls, were first brought to the schools under police escort to prevent their being harmed. As they entered the schools, they were accompanied by cheers from the crowd. One of the favorite chants of the picketing white boycotters is "Two, four, six, eight. We don't want to integrate."

At the present time, only a handful of white children are attending these two schools — most of them are the children of ministers, colored spectators and boos from the white members of the

Cold Weather Causes Power To Remember Warm Hawaiian Days

By JOYCE POWER

A DREAM COME TRUE! That is what two months of this past summer was for me. I had always dreamed of touring Hawaii, but never, never imagined such a trip becoming a reality.

The entire trip was a whirl of new experiences. I had never travelled by plane or ship, or even west of Georgia before. I flew from Atlanta to Vancouver, B. C. where I boarded my ship. The Oronsay, which introduced a new world to me. I met and talked with people, old and young, from all over the world and from all walks of life.

After leaving Vancouver, B. C. we docked at San Francisco where I toured the city, including North Beach, the Beatnik area, and at Long Beach, I spent a day in Disneyland.

The next stop was Honolulu. When we docked early that memorable morning, the band was playing and the hula dancers were on the boardwalk performing for us. We were welcomed by their traditional custom of a lei and a kiss. I came off the ship with about six or eight leis made of orchids and various other types of colorful flowers.

From every direction the tourist is afforded a panorama of mountains, valleys, and the blue sea. The flowers are beautiful, the likes of which we have never seen. Orchids grow in every backyard.

I was met at the ship by our tour director and with other girls on the tour was taken to the dorm, which was located in Rainbow Valley overlooking Diamond Head. The day we arrived was registration day at the University, therefore, the first item on the agenda was to get registered.

Their method of registration was well-planned and organized. I filled out a questionnaire in one room, walked to another and talked with my advisor, then to another room and picked up the IBM cards which placed me in the class. I enrolled in Oriental Religions and Dances of the Island (hula). During the regular session they enroll about 5,000 students, but, of course, in the summer the enrollment is not that large.

Snapshot Contest Ends January 7; Enter Yours Now

By MARIE EUBANKS

Along with the excitement of the beginning of the winter quarter is the rush to get photos entered in the Reflector Annual Snapshot Contest before the January 7 deadline.

Everywhere on campus amateur photographers will be snapping pictures of anybody doing almost anything from standing in a line to climbing the flagpole. Shots of our basketball team in action or at rest make excellent entries.

There are useful awards of $15 first prize, $10 second prize, and $5 third prize. This contest is very select. To be considered for the honor of winning a coveted prize one's snapshot must be entered in the contest. So everyone, get out and shoot—for the sake of the Reflector and thine own self.

Rules governing the contest are as follows:

1. All entries become the property of the Reflector, and may or may not be used in the 1961 Reflector.
2. Contestants may submit as many entries as they desire.
3. Any sort or size of picture will be accepted provided it is within the bounds of good taste.
4. Entries will be judged on the basis of subject, composition, reproduction ability, quality, originality.
5. All photographs should be in black and white because it is not possible to reproduce color photos.
6. The decision of the judges is final.
7. The name of the person who is submitting the picture should be placed on the back of the picture.

This year's contest will be divided into three categories: sports, campus life, and humor.

All snapshots will be submitted to the Reflector office, Room 110 of the Frank I. Williams Building.

Remember that deadline is January 7.

Letter To The Editor

Alpha Rho Tau wishes to express its appreciation to the students for their interest and cooperation in helping to carry out the theme of the Starlight Ball. We would also like to thank the student council for its financial assistance in sponsoring the dance, and to the dance band which gave us such wonderful entertainment for the evening.

We appreciate the efforts put forth by the Home Economics Club in creating the costumes. They did a splendid job!

We also wish to express thanks for the help given by the maintenance men, the night watchman, and the policeman. Finally, the club would like to say "thank you" to the many who participated in making the Starlight Ball a success.

It was wonderful going to class in shorts and barefooted or with your swim suit under your muu mus so that you could leave for Waikiki right after class.

I saw several celebrities while I was there such as Harry Belafonte, Shelly Berman, Ginny Tui, Bobby Darin, Martin Denny and others. Unless you see it for yourself, you can't imagine how beautiful the color of the water is. It is the bluest of blues. While skin diving, I saw the coral formations and beautifully colored fish.

I went to Punchbowl Cemetery where many of the soldiers who lost their lives in the Pacific are buried. I also went to several Buddhist Temples, and the Mormon Temple. While on the ship I attended The Church of England Service, and a Catholic mass in Hawaii at which time I saw Dr. Tom Dooley.

One of the most interesting and educational tours I made was at Pearl Harbor. I saw the remains of the USS Arizona and other ships which went down on that historic day in December, 1941, when Pearl Harbor was attacked. On the side of the road at Koli Koli Pass, a cross has been erected noting where the Japanese first flew through the mountains when they attacked Hawaii.

I flew by jet to San Francisco and stayed five days there. After that I headed home to Atlanta. This summer is a cherished memory and an experience I will never forget.

Axelson Resigns; Goes To Florida-To Work

By MIDGE LASKY and ROBERTA HALPERN

Although Joe Axelson, soon to be ex-public relations director at Georgia Southern College, smokes a pipe, he is still a thinking man!

Not only always thinking, but constantly on the go. It has frequently been said that it's a wonder how he accomplishes all that he does.

His recent astonishing announcement that he was leaving GSC to become sports director of radio station WPDQ in Jacksonville, Fla., took quite a few people by surprise. This new position opens a new world of experiences for him and although everyone is sorry to see him leave, they are happy that he has this opportunity for promotion.

Love of Sports

Joe calls his home Aurora, Illinois, and attended Clinton High School. His background in sports began at a very young age. His father, Joseph V. Axelson, was football and basketball coach for over 32 years and is now retired from coaching. Perhaps Joe's love and interest for all sports could be accredited to his father's early teaching.

Joe's favorite sport is baseball and a special ambition of his has always been to be the "Voice of the Cubs."

At the age of 15 he was the youngest worker on the Illinois Central Railroad where he served as a dispatcher. He enjoyed this work so much that he almost made it his career. Another long time desire of his has been to write a book about railroads for young people.

Officer At 19

This industrious teenager was also an officer in the army at 19 and went to Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga.

Joe attended the Medil School of Journalism at Northwestern University until "Uncle Sam" claimed his services once again. During his stay at Northwestern University Joe was helping to work his way through college as a waiter in a sorority house.

From December, 1947, to June, 1949, Joe was the officer in charge of the Armed Forces Radio Station in the cold, vast area of Whittier, Alaska.

Axelson Meets Searce

After leaving Alaska, he became coach of the army basketball and baseball teams at Fort Gordon, Ga. It was at Fort Gordon that the paths of J. B. Searce, coach of the GTC "Professors," and Joe Axelson crossed. Searce, noticing the young coach at the helm of the army team, interested him in coming to GSC.

From 1954 to 1956 Joe served as sports publicity director as well as being enrolled as a student here. During this same time he was statistician and publicist for the Georgia Intercollegiate Baseball Conference and correspondent for several area newspapers. He compiled, edited and made up the annual basketball yearbook, the athletic alumni quarterly, the individual game programs and edited the George-Anne.

Publicist At Furman

Before becoming public rela-

JOE AXELSON

tions director at GSC, a post which he has held since 1957, Joe was sports publicist at Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina.

Since coming to Statesboro Joe has made himself a true part of the town as well as the college. His voice is heard twice daily over WWNS on his sports shows. He often referees and broadcasts the local games.

Once in a while you can find Joe in the kitchen perfecting his culinary art and he especially likes to cook on the outdoor grill. Joe enjoys all kinds of music, particularly Dixieland. His office is equipped with both a record player and radio and usually one or the other is constantly playing.

Even Likes Commercials

He enjoys watching television, all types of shows - even the commercials. He's a faithful fan of Jack Paar and likes Alex King and Jonathan Winters immensely.

Joe's many attributes include being tremendously loyal and he keeps close contact with the activities of people that he's known and liked in the past. He's a perfectionist and expects people to do what they promise.

Joe has his own personal vocabulary of sayings that he uses often. Such expressions "I kid you not," "the little round filing cabinet" for a wastebasket, "the only thing money can buy is groceries," "don't salute, I'll be in the area all day," and "Don't call me coach, call me George," are typical of Joe.

Active In Clubs

Some of the many activities and clubs that Joe is active in include being scorekeeper of the Quarterback Club and newly elected captain which he will be unable to fulfill, a member of the Football Writers Association and of American and United States Basketball Writers Association. He is chairman of the NAIA Athletics Public Relations and Statistics Committee and also chairman of the High School Officials Association.

A special thanks goes to Mrs. Rae Axelson, and David and Mark, Joe's two oldest children, for some of the "inside" information on Joe's life.

As our advisor to the two GSC publications, the George-Anne and Reflector, Joe has certainly made our jobs more interesting and challenging, and we've enjoyed every minute of it!

AS WE SEE IT

By ROBERT SCHOFIELD and ROBBIE POWELL

After listening to the yells at the GSC-Tampa basketball game Wednesday, we cannot help, but wonder if the students at the game are the same group that make so much noise in the dorms and in the student center. Although the cheerleaders once again failed to show for the first half of the freshman game, they must be given credit for doing a fine job of cheering. We are sure that they could be the best cheerleaders we have ever had if every one would help them yell. Who knows? They may even come to the first half of the freshman games if we would help them yell.

As of last week Powell and Schofield predicted that the American League would operate in 1961 with only eight teams. However, this week it was announced that the two major leagues had reached a compromise and that the American League would move into Los Angeles. Bob Reynolds and singing star Gene Autry will head the new LA team.

In the Tampa-GSC game we had the pleasure of watching Harvey Mallis, Tampa's 6-3 freshman forward from Brooklyn. Mallis hit for 26 points and played a terrific game as Tampa lost to our Eagles. We feel that Mallis will be one of the small college greats in the near future.

We would like to congratulate Gail and Connie Lewis on the birth of their daughter. The little girl, named Elisa Scott, was born shortly after the GSC-Georgia game December 3.

The next home basketball game is not until next quarter, when the Eagles face Stetson on January 2. We hope every one will have a safe and pleasant Christmas holiday and will be back on campus January 2 for the game.

On behalf of the entire sports staff we would like to wish all of you a MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

The publication date for Miscellany has been delayed until the last week in January near Homecoming. The cause for the delay is the enthusiastic response they have received and financial matters. There will be a meeting of Miscellany, Saturday morning, December 10 in the Student Center.

This week the George-Anne presents Mike Keasler and Ronnie Anderson, two more of the basketball players that are new to the GSC campus.

Mike Keasler, who hails from Norris City, Illinois, is a 6-4 freshman forward. In his junior and senior high school years, he was the leading scorer and rebounder on the team. During these two last years in high school he made the All Southern Illinois Conference.

Ronnie Anderson, from Portal, Georgia, was chosen the most valuable player in the Jaycee's Tournament held at GSC last year. He also set a scoring record of 111 points in the six tournament games.

He is a 6 foot freshman guard.

NEWS BRIEFS

Mr. John Lindsey of the GSC education division spoke to the GEA of Vidalia High School concerning Georgia Southern College. His talk, entitled "The College With A Purpose," was divided into three parts: the history of the college, the various programs offered at GSC and the building program and future expectations of the college.

The Winter Quarter Social Calendar will be published during the Christmas holidays. If any club, organization, class or individual wants any item included, it will be necessary to turn this information in to the Office of Dean of Students immediately.

"SOUTH PACIFIC" TRIBUTE

As a critic of the theater,
I'm not much.
But when it comes to judging
Yours as such —
I can say with admiration and much praise
That yours' was much the better of the plays
The scenery, the songs, the entire cast
Gave memories to me that will last
I hope these words of prose, tho' short and sweet
Will let you know that
"South Pacific" CAN'T BE

I'm sure I speak for all
when I say —

New Course In Home Nursing Is Offered At GSC

A new home economics course entitled, "Family Health and Home Nursing," will be taught for one month during the winter and spring quarters, according to Miss Frances Anderson of the home economics division.

The course, which is listed in the college bulletin as Home Economics 460, is open to all students and would be beneficial especially to home economics and health and physical education majors, Miss Anderson stated.

For the first two weeks of the class, the American Red Cross State Nursing Director, Miss Mary Elizabeth Faircloth, will be on the GSC campus.

The course will be taught from January 3 through February 2 and classes will be certified to teach a course entitled, "American Red Cross Home Nursing-Care of Sick and Injured." This course is also valuable for community service work with Civil Defense.

Any interested student may attend the class from January 26 through February 2 when the Public Health Nurse will teach a unit entitled, "Mother and Baby Care." Students should notify Miss Anderson before January 26 if they plan to attend the class during this week.

Three-month course leads to a commission as a Second Lieutenant. If you are graduating this June, you may be eligible for admission to the new Air Force Officer Training School. Successful completion of the three-month course wins you a commission, and a head-start on a bright, rewarding future in the Aerospace Age.

The School is open to men and women college graduates with certain technological and administrative skills. If you are selected for the School, you will receive Staff Sergeant pay while a trainee. Graduated officers may later apply for advanced training and graduate study at government expense. Male officers may also apply for flight training as pilots or navigators.

For the career-minded young officer, the Air Force way of life can be stimulating, exciting and full of meaning. He will be serving himself, his family and his nation. This is the Aerospace Age. It is a time when a career in Air Force blue has so much to offer the young man or woman who qualifies.

The Air Force is seeking only a select group of college graduates for admission into Officer Training School. However, we'd be happy to send detailed information to any senior who is interested. Just write: Officer Training School Information.
